

CHANCELLOR

After 14 years of exemplary leadership of the University of Kansas, Chancellor Robert Hemenway has announced his intention to step down at the conclusion of the current school year. As a result, the Kansas Board of Regents announces a nationwide search to recruit the University's 17th Chancellor.

Opened in 1866, the University of Kansas is recognized as one of the finest public research universities in the country and is a member of the Association of American Universities (AAU). KU enrolls more than 30,000 students, employs more than 2,100 faculty members, and has an annual operating budget of $1.2 billion.

Considered one of the most beautiful campuses in the nation, KU's main campus occupies 1,000 acres on and around Mount Oread in Lawrence, a community of 88,500 among the forested hills of eastern Kansas. The University also includes the Medical Center in Kansas City, Kansas; the Edwards Campus in Overland Park; a clinical campus of the School of Medicine in Wichita; and educational and research facilities throughout the state.

Reporting to the Kansas Board of Regents, the Chancellor is the chief executive officer of the university and is responsible for executing its mission in the most effective manner. Additional information about the University is available at [www.ku.edu].

The Board of Regents and Chancellor Search Committee seek candidates who have demonstrated exemplary leadership. It is expected that candidates will have impeccable integrity, strategic vision, a high energy level, excellent interpersonal and communication skills, and everyday common sense. The best candidates will be individuals of stature who have a keen understanding of higher education, a passion for educating students, and a proven respect and appreciation for a world-class faculty.

While applications and nominations will be accepted until a new Chancellor is selected, interested parties are encouraged to submit their materials to the address below by March 30 to assure optimal consideration.
